

KUNA MORA ROAD corridor study | phase II

Ada County Highway District Project Update

THE ADA COUNTY HIGHWAY DISTRICT (ACHD) would like to inform you that the Kuna Mora Road Corridor, Phase II Study has been put on hold due to budget constraints within the District. The decision to postpone additional study work by the project consultant is the result of a vote by ACHD Commissioners at the April 15, 2009 Commission meeting.

While the overall study is on hold, ACHD staff will work with the Nampa Highway District (NHD) to explore the feasibility of a roadway alignment through Bureau of Land Management (BLM) land-- an option favored by the public but one that has drawn serious concerns from the federal agency about potential environmental impacts to the Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area. The BLM option is one of three alignment options being evaluated. ACHD and NHD are working cooperatively to determine where to best connect Bowmont Road (in Canyon County) to Kuna Mora Road (in Ada County). Upon direction from the Commissioners, ACHD will resume work on Phase II of the study, however, no time frame has been established for when this might occur.

Study Background

Phase II of the Kuna Mora Road Corridor Study focuses on evaluating potential alignment options for the eight-mile segment of Kuna Mora Road from the Canyon County line east to Eagle Road. A preferred alignment will ultimately be established for this segment. A public open house was held on February 4, 2009 for Phase II. Additional public involvement will occur once the study resumes.
